Regency Romance: The Rogue Duke Comes Home

Synopsis

Henry William Westton or "West" made a bet that he would never get married. Mary Elizabeth Harvey, the daughter of the Duke of Berkshire, was building a successful business of fragrances. Henry William Westton, the young Duke of Essex, was one of the four horsemen. The four friends had been dubbed with the nickname by Mary when they were children and had played together on neighboring estates. Riding and adventures were the tasks of the day. The four boys attended Eaton together and had been gone for about six years before returning to a life of parties and debauchery. The four young men had been dubbed rakes. Mary had been falling in love with West since she was 10. Could a Duke accept her business? West realizes he is ready to settle down and begin a family, he just doesn't want anyone. West wants his childhood friend and sweetheart. He did defend her after all when they were younger. Who better to marry? This is a 10,000 word short story with 20+ Bonus Historical Romance Books, all with HEA endings.

Customer Reviews

While I enjoyed the storyline, I found the telling of it was not quite as well presented as I would have liked.

Dialogue is badly written. Characters converse in a series of monologues with no flow. Information is repeated several times and becomes distracting.

A book of short stories and novellas. All very original and well written. Very good plots. If you enjoy shorter stories this book will satisfy your tastes for several days. Highly recommend this book of very clean Romances. Joycejones@eastex
